

CAMPUS BEAT

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 2018 A PRACTICAL NEWS BULLETIN OF PG DEPARTMENT OF JOURNALISM AND MASS COMMUNICATION Vol 1; No.40

Countdown for Sangam begins

AISHWARYA and SHVETHA

CAMPUS: To enthrall students in art and culture, SAC is holding Sangam 2018 on February 8. The main focus of this event is to bring post-graduate brings the students together.”

To make the event unique this time, the chief guest of the programme will be Harekala Hajjaba, a social reformer in Mangalore .

Anu P Thomas, a student of Shvetha

Students performing flashmob on Wednesday

students together on one stage and nurture healthy competition among students.

Twelve departments of SAC are taking part in the fest. The pre-event competitions such as group singing, quiz, creative writing, mehendi, rangoli are being held from February 3.

Tia Boban, staff coordinator of Sangam said, “The competitive vibe could be seen in students of various departments. The students are working really hard to bring up the best among them. Sangam is not just for winning the awards, but as the name suggests it

II MA English said, “Apart from academic projects, we are getting a platform to showcase our talents and ideas. This is also a chance to create a good bond within the department. Last year several departments came up with different social issues in a very unique manner and this year I hope every department will succeed in giving relevant message to the audience.”

The SAC teaching and non-teaching staff members hope students will bring forth creative ideas with social relevance.

District administration to hold ‘Disha’ career fest 2018

DAJIWORLD

MANGALORE: The district administration in association with the centre for entrepreneurship opportunities and learning (CEOL) and a l v a s . E d u c a t i o n foundtin,moodbidri will organize “Disha”,a career fest 2018,a mega placement drive,at Mangalore University campus,on February 17 said Deputy Commissioner Sasikanth Senthil.

He was addressing the media persons at his office here, he said that the fair would help to the employment needs of students who have passed with qualifications such as SSLC, PUC, degree, postgraduate and other courses except engineering. More than 150 companies are expected to take part.

He further said, as of now, 66 companies have registered to take part in the drive. Companies representing IT and ITes, banking, and financial services, sales and retail, manufacturing, hospitality, education, NGO and automobile will participate. As of now, the companies will be scouting candidates for 3470 vacancies. A total of 1,168 candidates have already registered so far. There are 1842 vacancies for SSLC, 1164 vacancies for ITI/diploma, 2233 for degree and 937 vacancies for PG students.

Candidates are requested to bring with them 8 to 10 passport size photographs, multiple copies of updated resume and photocopies of all marks cards. They must report to the venue at 8 am.

The candidates who wish to take part in DISHA can register through the following link-For SSLC/PUC and below qualifications:

St Agnes College to host int'l seminar 'gods, guns and globalism'

DAJIWORLD

MANGALURU : "St Agnes College English PG department will organise a two-day international seminar on 'Gods, Guns and Globalism : Critical theories today and tomorrow' on February 8 and 9. The seminar will be held at Sofia block of the college," announced Dr Geralyn Pinto, associate professor and head of the department of English.

Addressing the media here on Tuesday February 6, Dr Geralyn Pinto said, "The seminar will focus on critical theories as instruments for the analysis and interpretation of literature, but no more beyond that to discuss inter-disciplinary issues that concern the future of human society and life on this planet.

"The seminar will be inaugu-

MSW defeats Physics dept in football

AKSHATA

CAMPUS: The department of MSW defeated MSc Physics team by goals in the football tournament here on Tuesday. As part of Sangam, cultural activities and sports events are being held in the campus.

Nithin KT from II MAJMC said, “Such events promote competitive spirit among students and is a chance to relieve the pressures of academic life. It was a friendly game which allowed different teams of PG a chance to develop the sportsman spirit within them.”

Out of the various departments who took part in the tournament MSW, MSC Food Science, MAJMC, MSC Physics were selected for semi finals.

Tia Boban, teacher at MAJMC said, “Sangam fest which is conducted annually by the PG departments encourages students to participate in various events and showcase their talents. It gives them an opportunity to engage themselves with different events apart from the academic life.

As part of the event the students will perform a flash mob.

St Agnes college

rated by Dr Surendra Rao, retired professor of history. Luigi Marchini, chairman 'Save the Writers', author and poet from Canterbury England will deliver the keynote address. The valedictory programme will be held on February 9 and Dr Kishori Nayak, professor of English will be the chief guest.

"The resource persons will be Prof Joseph Dorairaj from the department of English, Gandhigram Rural University, Tamil Nadu, Dr B S Sherin assistant professor from the department of Comparative Literature Hyderabad, Dr David Sweeney."

St Agnes PG coordinator Dr Noeline Pinto, guest faculty PG dept of English Dr A Lour-dusamy, student coordinator Keerthi Naik and others were present.

Soon, motorist's traffic violation to be accessible to cops in Karnataka

MANGALOREAN.com

BENGALURU: A traffic cop anywhere in the Karnataka will

M A Saleem told media that a unified server will be constructed in the Traffic Management Centre in Bengaluru and

Traffic police verifying documents

soon be able to access a motorist's violations, with the traffic department planning to implement a unified system across the state.

There are 114 traffic police stations across 30 districts. At present, traffic violation data is registered only in the district traffic police server, not in the state server.

With a unified system, the entire data of traffic violations across the state would be linked to a central server. This enables every traffic police station to access violations of a particular vehicle anywhere in Karnataka. This will help in increasing the penalty as well as bring down traffic violations.

Commissioner for traffic and road safety (additional charge) separate staff will be hired to run and maintain it.

He further added that 300 personal digital assistant (PDA) will be distributed to traffic police in all districts once the server is installed. The assistant sub-inspectors, sub-inspectors and inspectors will be given special training sessions on using PDAs.

PDAs are handheld devices with in-built printers, cameras and enforcement applications to register traffic violations. The gadgets also take pictures and record videos. The GPS will help record the place and time of the traffic violation.

At present, 44 police stations in Bengaluru and five in Mysuru use PDAs.