Mallya makes a comprehensive settlement before High Court

INDIAN EXPRESS

LONDON: Liquor baron Vijay Mallya, who is facing money laundering charges in multi-crore fraud case in India, said on Wednesday he had made a "comprehensive settlement" offer before the Karnataka High Court that will help in paying off all his dues.

The remarks by Mallya came as he arrived at the Westminster Magistrates' Court for a hearing in his extradition case, during which the judge is expected to review a video of the Mumbai jail cell prepared for Mallya. The 62-year-old former Kingfisher Airline boss, who has been on bail on an extradition warrant since his arrest in April last year, responded to the swarm of reporters gathered outside the court in his characteristic manner, saying the "courts will decide".

"As far as I am concerned, I have. I hope the honourable judges will consider it favourably; everybody gets paid off and I guess that's the primary objective," said

Mallya, who is fighting extradition to India on charges of fraud and money laundering amounting to around Rs 9,000

Students performing at the musical evening

Students singing and dancing to the familiar tunes. The music association of the College organised a musical event was inaugurated by Dr Narayan Bhat, from the Physics department.

"Even though this was a one day programme to entertain us, the participants of this event were chosen through auditions," said Nisha Fernandes, secretary of the music association. She went on to say that after the students were selected they were put into different bands with a theme selected by themselves. She said that it was a great opportunity for her to coordinate this event with her fellow colleagues from the music association.

"The motive of this event was to showcase the talents of the students and to inculcate more confidence among them," said Caroleena Janfer, faculty member of BBA department. The entire park was filled with a jubilant mood as students were seen enjoying the music and forgetting about their workload and studies at least for the moment.

In the morning there was an inter-collegiate Indian music singing competition for the degree colleges in Mangalore city. The event was sponsored by M C Jayaram, a former student of SAC. Eight colleges including SDM College, St Agnes College, Mahesh College, Shri Devi College, and Shrinivas College participated in the competition.

One group from each college consisting of a minimum 6 members and maximum 15 members were permitted to partake in this event. Mahesh College won the first prize while SDM College won the second prize.

This musical evening concluded with a DJ party.
